JUNE 2024

MANAGEMENT COMMENTARY (QUARTERLY)

During the second quarter of 2024, financial markets experienced a positive momentum fueled by strong economic data, and more accommodative central bank in a context of falling inflation. The technology sector remained a strong performer, driven by advancements in AI and renewed consumer demand, despite resurgence of political and geopolitical tensions across the world. In this environment, Hedge Funds had mixed results with significant dispersion among managers. Event Driven strategy was the sole positive contributor this quarter thanks to some level of resurgence of M&A activity during the quarter (Lumyna PSAM Global Event Driven Fund: +1.65%). The main detractor of performance was the CTA manager Schroder GAIA BlueTrend as it suffered from short position in USD and short positions in US natural gas. In the Long/Short bucket, positive contribution from managers with exposures to AI were offset by the new joiner, BDL Rempart, whose long French equity exposures suffered from the CAC40 drawdown following European elections.
